REPORT OF FOUR CASES SUGGESTING STATUS LYMPHATICUS*

J. A. GOODRICH, M. D., DES MOINES, IOWA

*Read before the Polk County Medical Society, September 24, 1912.

The death of four children in one family within a period of three months and four days, and all occuring under similar circumstances presented a condition of more than ordinary interest. As all the bodies went to autopsy, I will leave the cause of death and conclusions to the pathologist who follows me with his report, and will content myself with the clinical features and history of the cases.

The father of these children is alive and well; the mother died of heart and lung affection, in October, 1910, some eighteen months previous to the death of the first child. In January, 1912, the father again married. In the father's family tree, we find the death of eight of his brothers and sisters, all under nine years of age; three from Scarlet Fever, one Erysipelas, one Flux and three unknown. On the mother's side we find nothing of unusual interest.

CASE 1. April 8, 1912, Wyetta, aged four, suddenly died. For a few weeks some impairment of hearing had been noted, and her breathing had been somewhat difficult and stertorous, but this was ascribed to a cold and was treated with home remedies. About a year previously this child was afflicted with Diphtheria and was given 5000 units of antitoxin with recovery, but she seemed somewhat more sluggish after this time. During the few days before her death this apathy was more marked. She did not care to play, was afflicted with enuresis, nocturnal and diurnal. At about midnight the night before her death she aroused her father by an attack of choking followed by vomiting, after which she slept till morning. On arising she was noticed to have a pallid look. She again vomited and was put back to bed, and a physician was summoned, but Dr. Kelley found her dead on his arrival.

CASE 2. Eight days following the death of Wyetta, Cecil, a bright little two-year old girl fell down the cellar stairs, fracturing her left clavicle. This I dressed that evening. At this time she seemed bright and sat up in bed while I applied the dressings. The following morning at about seven she arose and seemed quite well, eating only a little cake for breakfast, however. Soon after eight o'clock she was seized with a spasm, which was soon followed by another. Then she said she was hungry and was given some strawberries, of which she ate quite heartily. She was then put to bed and was soon asleep. This did not last long however for she was soon heard screaming. By the time her mother reached her, she was dead.

CASE 3. June 7, Walter, aged five and one-half years, died just as suddenly and mysteriously as did the others. Some two weeks prior to this time he, like Wyetta, was noticed to be able to hear less acutely than usual. His tonsils and adenoids, as well as all superficial lymphatic glands, were noted to be hypertrophied. Syrup of ferrous iodide was given in full doses. On this morning he had seemed to be in his usual health and had gone out into the garden and was picking potato bugs off the potatoes when he was called in because the sunshine seemed to be rather hot. He went into the house and lay down on the bed but said he was not sick. Soon after this, on going to his room he was found to be dead. One arm had been raised over his head and a little bloody froth exuded from the mouth. His face, as did the others, bore a mottled look. This child had experienced a little excitement earlier in the day. When his sister had returned from school with her promotion card, this being the last day of school, he became much interested and could talk of little else than of what he would do when he entered school this fall.

CASE 4. On July 12, just three months and four days from the death of Wyetta, Josephine, aged seven, the last of the family of four happy and contended children, was stricken. Since the death of Cecil and more especially of Walter, she had been watched very carefully, not only by the family but by physicians as well. She, like Wyetta and Walter, suffered with enlarged tonsils, and during her last few days of life the warning deafness appeared. On two or three occasions she was seized with spells in which she thought she was being choked, but recovered from them. In one of these seizures she said, "Oh, my God, someone is choking me." She then turned cyanotic and sweat freely. After recovery she asked if her mother had seen all the people around her.

During the night previous to her death, she had become greatly alarmed because of the thunder storm then raging, but after its cessation, she slept quite well. At seven her father, on going to work awakened her and asked her how she felt, as was his custom. She replied "all right," and returned to sleep. Some two hours later she arose and went to the living room and started to dress. Her head was then noted to be inclined on her chest, and her face mottled and cyanotic. Attempts to revive her failed, and death followed immediately.

General Observations—

1. In all cases death occurred before the arrival of a physician and under very similar circumstances.

2. Three of the four had a preliminary deafness.

3. Three of the four had seizures of choking or attacks resembling spasms.

4. All the children were well nourished, bright, and seemed to be in good health, except that all were of a nervous temperament and became easily excited.

5. In all cases, no malady sufficient to cause death was noted clinically.

6. No other similar cases are known among their playmates or friends.

SOME PROOF.

"So he took you out auto riding the other evening?" "Yes, what of it?" "Do you think he is in love with you?" "I think so. I know that every time I spoke to him the auto tried to climb a tree or jump a fence."—Houston Post.

RECORD OF THE POST MORTEM EXAMINATION ON CECIL LOUISE D. TWO YEARS OF AGE.

D. J. GLOMSET, M. D., DRAKE UNIVERSITY, DES MOINES, IOWA.

Held at Donovan's Undertaking Parlor, April 17, 1912, eight hours after death.

Record: The body is that of a white female child about two years of age. The color of the body is strikingly white. The subcutaneous fat is well preserved. There are two ecchomotic spots, circular in outline, above the right eye, the most lateral one having its center on a perpendicular line drawn from the external canthus of the eye. This one is 2½ cm. in diameter. The pupils are moderately dilated and the sclera area strikingly white. The inguineal glands, the cervical, as well as axillary glands are palpable. A slight trace of body heat is present. Post mortem rigidity is present in the extremities, and postmortem lividity occurs on the dependent parts of the body. The abdomen is prominent and the limbs rotund. The subcutaneous fat is well preserved and is of a light yellow color. The muscles are pale. The omentum covers the intestines entirely. The appendix is free from adhesions. The muscles and the loose subcutaneous tissue surrounding the left clavicle are infiltrated with blood. This bone is broken completely in two, an inch an half from its sternal end. The fracture is distinctly crosswise. The small intestines are distended with gas. The peritoneum is free from adhesions and smooth.

Thoracic Cavity: The pleural cavities are free from adhesions and each contain a few c. c. of a serous fluid. The thymus is very prominent and occupies completely the upper 2-3 of the anterior mediastinum. It covers the right auricle. The organ is composed of a central and two lateral lobes, it weighs 60 grammes. It measures 4.5 by 6 cm. It is rather soft and is of a whitish appearance.

Heart: The pericardium contains a few c.c. of a straw colored fluid. The pericardium is smooth and free from adhesions. The right heart is dilated. The myocardium is rather soft. The valves are unchanged. The right auricle contains a goose flesh thrombus.

Respiratory organs: The tonsils are greatly enlarged; the pharyngeal tonsil is prominent, so is also the lymphatic structures at the base of the tongue. The mucosa of the trachea is congested. The lungs crepitate very poorly throughout. A frothy, bloody fluid exudes from the surface made by section.

Liver: This organ is about normal in size; its surface is smooth; and the consistance of the organ is soft. The gall bladder is moderately distended with a ropy fluid. The liver cuts with ease and a syrup fluid exudes from the cut surface.

Spleen: This is normal in size; and has a boggy feel. It is distinctly lobulated. A thick bloody fluid can be scraped from the surface made by section. The malpigian bodies are strikingly prominent.

Kidneys: These are normal in size. The veins in the pelvices are distended with blood.

Superenals: These are congested; otherwise normal.

Pancreas: Is unchanged.

Stomach: Contains about 200 c.c. of partially digested food most of which is strawberries. (The stomach content was sent to a chemist.)

Intestines: The peyers patches are prominent; otherwise the bowel is unchanged.

Glands: The mesenteric glands are greatly enlarged and vary in size from that of a pea to a hazel nut. They are greyish in color and moderately firm.

Brain: The veins of the meninges are distended. The brain substance is soft and its cut surface is very damp.

Microscopical Findings: Simple hypertrophy of the thymus tissue with gelatinous degeneration of some of Hassels Corpuscles. Simple hypertrophy of some of the lymph glands: atrophy of the lymphoid part with a proliferation of the endothelial cells in the others. Edema and passive congestion of lungs; parenchymatous degeneration of myocardium. Passive congestion of liver, spleen, kidneys and adrenals.

Bacteriological Examination: A blood culture from the heart was negative.

CHEMIST'S REPORT.

To Whom It May Concern: This is to certify that I have examined the contents of the stomach of Cecil D., who was autopsied April 17, 1912, by Dr. D. J. Glomset, and do not find and evidence of either mineral or organic poisons.

Respectfully submitted,

F. J. SMITH,
Prof. of Chemistry.

THE RIGHT OF WAY.

When father drove old Dobbin, he sat upon his load
And frowned on every chauffeur who wanted half the road;
When father got an auto, his feelings seemed to switch:
He glared at every horse he met unless it took the ditch.

The Directory.

The present management of the Journal began in July, 1900, and in January of that year, a Directory of Iowa Physicians was published by Dr. J. W. Kime, then editor.

How many years before that the Directory was published in the Journal, we do not know, but every year, with the exception of one, the list of names has been revised and corrected and published in the Journal.

This is the 12th year under our management, and the editor has personally supervised the work, which at times has been most irksome, but has been afforded most kindly assistance by county secretaries and others, in compiling the data for the Directory.

Many individuals have responded with the data required, while others have ignored our repeated efforts to get a better report, and consequently, if there are errors regarding physicians, it is not our fault.

As Medical Directors of insurance companies scan our Directory carefully for names, we have tried to furnish correct data, and if an individual is the looser by not being properly or completely listed, he alone must bear the consequences.

We forwarded to each individual in the profession in Iowa, a blank to be filled out and returned. Hundreds of these have been returned and thousands have not, so we have done the best we could from all sources of information. This number of the Journal will not be sampled to the profession.

Medicine Against Politics.

DR. DORR: Don't you think more medicine and less politics would help our societies generally?—E. K. A.

There are two sides to a medical society: scientific and social.

It frequently happens that the men who have done the most to strengthen a medical society by the reading and discussion of papers is also the man who has paid closest attention to the business and social affairs of the society.

It also frequently happens that some of the brightest men in the society care little for the literary program, but are "Johnny on the spot" when it comes to the social side and the election of officers.

Others care little for either, but as it takes less energy to follow the political leaders, they throw their support that way.

A society must have men who will enforce the writing and reading of papers, and encourage free discussions on the same. They must have men also who recognize that the election of men who will work for the literary program as well as for the social side of the society, is necessary for the preservation and advancement of the society.

If the politics of a society results in the election of officers for parade only, then politics are bad for the society.

If only the diggers in research were put in to run a society, it probably would not fare as well nor be as interesting as the one conducted by the Boss.

We do not see why politics should destroy the interest in medical societies, for it takes a majority of the members to decide all questions.

If the society as a whole will decide upon the literary features it wishes carried out during the year, and then elect officers to do the work, there will be no cry against politics. If the schedule is reversed there will be little interest in the medical society as a literary or scientific organization.

In the larger societies, the honor of office is very alluring and some men reach the goal through handshaking and personal confidences while others work hard and conscientiously for the up-building of the society as a scientific body.

The enterprising State Society Journal publishes in its October Number a paper from Dr. O. P. Thompson of Waterloo, which was printed in the IOWA MEDICAL JOURNAL, in September.

The paper deserves repetition but it is not published as a reprint by the State Journal.

Subscribing for the Journal of the State Society.

We have been asked many times by members of the society, if they had to take the journal or lose their membership in the state society.

In answer, we will say "No" to each.

The government postal authorities have demanded that each member of the society shall indicate when he pays his dues, whether $1.00 shall go as subscription to the journal of the state society. If he does not wish to pay the dollar for this purpose, he may pay the balance for defense fund and general expenses, and retain his membership in the society.

The following is copied from a report of the editor to the trustees:

"In the latter part of the year 1911, the ruling of the department was modified to the extent of permitting journals of Societies to enter as second-class postal matter and carry advertising, PROVIDING an itemized bill was presented, including the Journal, which could BE ACCEPTED OR NOT at the OPTION of the member without AFFECTING his membership in the Society, that is, he could pay the dues, EXCEPTING the Journal item, and STILL remain a member in good standing." Journal of Iowa State Medical Society, July, 1912, page 44.

Each member should receive a bill from the state society, indicating the division into which the fund is made, viz:

General Expenses	$1.00
Subscription to the Journal of the Society	1.00
Medical Legal Protection	1.00
Medical Legal Protection Assessment 1912-1913	1.00
	$4.00

Then, if he desires to retain his membership without paying the subscription to the journal of the society, he can do so by paying the $3.00.

Every member should bear in mind the fact that he must indicate his wishes, else the society may be embarrassed in presuming that he wishes the journal, for the secretary of the society cannot sign for a member, and the government postal department only will accept those as subscribers who have personally indicated when they pay their dues to the state society.

The New Order of the Board of Education.

It may seem out of place for us to discuss the recent order of the Board of Educational Control, in this Journal. To be sure the matter is not strictly medical, but we as physicians, are interested in many things not medical, and a subject that is of as vital importance as the education of our children, certainly deserves discussion wherever it may arise.

It may seem strange that neither the friends of Ames or Iowa City are satisfied with the order.

It may be a matter of economy to consolidate the engineering forces of the state, at Ames, but it destroys the interest of a large number of the friends of engineering in Iowa, who have been satisfied that the work at Iowa City has been successful and that the department is essential to the integrity of the University.

There are those also, who do not see the necessity of limiting Household Economics to Iowa City.

It seems to us that many circumstances enter into the educational features of women. The girls are apt to follow their brothers or the brothers of their friends in the trend of education.

Nothing could be more natural than that the girls should take up a collateral and supporting line of study with the boys.

Eugenics holds a higher place in the minds of the public now, than ever before, and our girls are looking forward with as much interest in its development as the boys are to scientific husbandry.

The mothers of the girls who are now educating themselves along the same lines of scientific betterment, looked forward to and worked for the betterment of the people with whom they were to become a part. Do we expect the girls of this generation to do less?

The girls at Ames are there because they have chosen to cast their lots with those interested in the same lines of education. They have become a mollifying factor of the school. They are the social balance wheel of the institution. They have encouraged moral and physical development among the boys until now a new era, almost, has been reached.

Their presence, their encouragement and their moral backing is as necessary as ever and their sympathies, and hopes are beacon lights for high accomplishments in the student body.

Next month we will have a number of interesting papers. Among these papers is one by Dr. James Dunn, formerly A. A. Surgeon U. S. Public Health Service, Davenport, Iowa; subject, "Trachoma." There will be one by Dr. D. J. Glomset, Professor of Pathology, Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa; subject, "Autogenous Vaccines." Dr. H. N. Bundesen of Chicago has contributed "A Technique for Macroscopic Agglutination." Dr. M. J. Joynt of Jesup, writes on, "Cystic Degeneration of the Chorion Villi with Report of Cases;" and Dr. D. J. Townsend of Gilmore City, sends a paper on "Eclampsia." Dr. F. S. Smith of Nevada, has a paper on "Pellagra," and Dr. Ruth of Des Moines, gives a description of his treatment for "Fractured Hip," with illustrations.
